

Former STUFF Editor

Alumnus Earns AMA Award
For Series On Doctor Shortage

Mike Thoele '63, a former editor of STUFF and currently a writer for the Eugene (Ore.) Register-Guard, has been named by the American Medical Association along with two other writers as the recipient of the 1969 Medical Journalism Award in the newspaper category.

MIKE THOELE '63

The award-winning seven-part series of articles dealt with the decline of medical services in smaller Oregon communities. The three authors received individual plaques and shared a $1,000 stipend which accompanied the award. The presentation was made

June 23 in Chicago at the annual meeting of the National Association of Science Writers.

The seven articles appeared in the Register-Guard during June, 1969. They detailed the nationwide shortage of general practitioners and its effects on Emerald Empire communities. Two communities, Junction City and Oakridge, were cited as experiencing a drastic decline in medical services, while additional articles outlined how other communities had managed to attract and keep doctors.

Four of the articles were written by Thoele. Two other Register-Guard reporters, Ted Kyle and Jim Boyd, authored the other three. The newspaper, with a circulation of 60,000, is the smallest ever to win the award which was instituted by the AMA five years ago.

Thoele, his wife Sandy and their daughter moved to Oregon in January, 1969. Mike states that he covers 500 square miles of mountain and valley country from an outlying bureau office in his home at Junction City.

Previously Mike worked for the Bluffton (Ind.) News-Banner, the Rensselaer Republican and the Decatur (Ind.) Democrat.

Fr. Hiller Dies At 74

Fr. Joseph A. Hiller, 74, professor emeritus of German at Saint Joseph's, died of a massive coronary December 1 at Jasper County Hospital.

Fr. Hiller was a native of Edenhagen, Bavaria, Germany. He first came to Saint Joseph's as a student in 1913 where he received his high school education. He continued at Saint Joseph's until 1919 working on his undergraduate education, then completed his degree requirements at Saint Charles Seminary in 1925 when he was ordained to the priesthood.

After receiving his master's degree in medieval history from Catholic University of America in 1932, Fr. Hiller returned to Saint Joseph's as an instructor. He did further graduate work at the University of Cincinnati in 1935-37, then earned his doctorate in comparative Germanic philology at Catholic University in 1939. He was promoted to the rank of associate professor at SJC in 1939 and became a full professor in 1963. He was honored during a Mass and testimonial dinner last May 1, marking his retirement from the faculty.

Burial was December 4 at St. Charles Seminary in Carthagena, Ohio.

Learning Status Of Women
Purpose Of College Course

Reprinted from the Indianapolis Star
November 8, 1970

By MARY ANNE BUTTERS

Rensselaer, Ind.—Women, their roles, rights and responsibilities, are the subject of much conversation today.

But on the northern Indiana campus of Saint Joseph's College, women are the subject of serious academic research and study for 21 upperclass students of the humanities.

The professor of the three-hour sociology seminar entitled "The Role of Women in the Modern World" is Fatina Shaker, a 28-year-old Fullbright scholar from Jeddah, Saudi Arabia.

SUCH A COURSE WOULD have been unlikely a few years ago at the small Catholic college. Before September of 1967 the liberal arts college was an all-male institution.

Prof. Shaker's primary aim in the course is to motivate her students (including seven men) "to find out where they stand with the women's movement—what they want by equality, by change."

HER STUDENTS WERE at first surprised that a Moslem woman would be teaching the course.

"An Arabian woman, specifically a Saudi Arabian woman, usually is viewed as traditionally unequal in her culture," she believes.

As a recent graduate of the University of Cairo, Fatina worked with other young men and women who pressured the government to make changes to "give women a chance."

"The government didn't grant us these changes; we demanded them," she recalls.

IN MANY CASES the demands were for rights already enjoyed by American women. In others, the Saudi Arabian women already were "more liberated."

For example, a Saudi Arabian woman was not allowed to attend the all-male colleges in her own country. However, if she studied abroad and returned to her homeland she would be welcomed with pay and professional status equal to any man equally educated.

A professional woman retains her maiden name in Saudi Arabia. Also, it is commonplace for a woman to seek property under her own name.

Fatina Shaker is herself an excellent example of these cultural differences. She is married to Nabil Abo-khatwa, a research assistant in toxicology at Purdue University. However, she has no plans to assume her husband's name.

CURRENTLY, SHE IS completing her doctorate in sociology at Purdue. Once she earns her degree, she will be the first Saudi Arabian woman ever to hold a Ph.D. This is particularly amazing considering that her nation prides itself on spending more than 10 per cent of the government's budget on education. (The U.S. Federal budget allows 3.8 per cent.)

Prof. Shaker, who has studied in America for six years, encourages her students to approach the subject of women's roles as a comparative study between many cultures.

She has discovered that her students are "less radical than outsiders view them. They want to maintain traditional roles concerning marriage, family, femininity and masculinity."

PROFESSOR SHAKER

IN KEEPING WITH THE college's "core curriculum" approach to education, the course is taught in an informal manner, with emphasis upon student participation.

Each team of students is preparing a term project and their professor is delighted with the ambitious subjects selected.

She explains, "One of the projects is devoted to women's liberation, with an attempt to study the historical bases and to establish whether the movement has an underlying ideology."

Prof. Shaker is anxious to see the findings of the project entitled "Women's Liberation—Where Does the Black Woman Stand?"

Of particular interest is the research being conducted for the term paper with the title "Mother Church Is a Man."

The professor explains that her students are "investigating the status of women in the Catholic Church with emphasis on the ways in which they are discriminated against."

Alumni Board Approves
Class Agent Proposal

The Board of Directors of the SJC Alumni Association met on campus October 31 and passed resolutions which will extensively alter the College's alumni relations program.

By unanimous vote, the Directors adopted a proposal submitted by board member Charles Ryan '65 which outlined plans for the establishment of a class agent system. Under the system, each class will have an agent who will act as a bridge between alumni headquarters on campus and the members of his class. The agent will be responsible for conveying details in alumni projects to his classmates, while classmates could report items of interest through him to the campus alumni office.

The Board also gave its approval to a feedback card system of communication with alumni, inviting the alumni to offer their opinions regarding the College and its policies and to ask questions. The campus alumni office is making plans to respond to the cards with the aid of student staff members.

In other business, the Board heard reports on financial support, recruiting, campus relations and chapter events. In addition, two resolutions were passed commending College staff members for their successful work: Dr. John Egan of the music department and Head Football Coach Bill Jennings.

The Alumni Board of Directors, consisting of 24 alumni who serve three-year terms, will meet on campus again on March 20. The main item on the agenda is the election of officers, including a new president of the Alumni Association who will also serve as a voting member of the College's Board of Trustees.

REPORT ON CLASS GIFTS -- 1965-1969

Saint Joseph's graduating class of 1965 inaugurated a twenty-five year life insurance endowment program with Continental Life Assurance Company of Chicago whereby the class could raise a substantial amount of money to be used in making a gift to Saint Joseph's. The gift will be presented by the members of the class in 1990 on their silver anniversary as graduates.

Since 1965, Saint Joseph's other graduating classes have established their own programs with Continental. The College wishes to gratefully acknowledge those alumni now participating in these programs.

Pumas End Season Of Thrills With Best Record Since '57

1970 was the year of the Puma. Picked to finish last in the Indiana Collegiate Conference by most pre-season forecasters, the Saint Joseph's Pumas astonished everyone by posting a 7-2 season and finishing second in the ICC.

If the Pumas' first victory over Olivet was expected, then their first defeat at the hands of Georgetown was not. Saint Joseph's had won at Georgetown (Ky.) last year, and although scouting reports indicated an improved Georgetown team this year, the Pumas were still favored. And they almost did win: With only seconds left in the game, Saint Joe scored on a desperation pass which put the Pumas but one point behind. Kicking the extra point would have meant a tie, but the Pumas decided to pass for two. The pass fell incomplete, but the crowd cheered its approval of a team which went for a victory rather than a tie.

The SJC-Valparaiso game, one of the great traditional rivalries in small college football, began with Valpo returning the opening kickoff for a touchdown. But the Pumas later forced the Crusaders into losing the ball six times on fumbles and pass interceptions, and the Saints went on to crush the visitors from the north, 38-19.

DePauw's Tigers, also not rated as contenders in the ICC, gave the Pumas a tougher game. But it was Saint Joseph's homecoming, and the Pumas wanted a victory for the alumni, their first over DePauw in three years, 14-3.

In the Butler Bowl, before 8,000 fans, the Pumas played their most thrilling game of the year. Losing by five points with only minutes to play, Puma linebacker Mike Battrell (junior - Dwight, Ill.) intercepted a pass and returned it 50 yards to the Butler ten. The Pumas punched their way to the one-yard line, but were stopped cold with little more than two minutes left in the game. For the Butler fans, a homecoming victory appeared secure. But with a minute left on the clock, Saint Joe forced Butler to punt, and five plays later the Pumas scored, winning the game in the last nine seconds, 26-24.

Millikin and Wabash were prepared to the Evansville game. The Saints had little trouble extending their winning streak to five.

Then came the last conference game of the season at Evansville, and both the Pumas and Aces were undefeated in conference play. Evansville jumped off to a big early lead, but Saint Joseph's came back to score two touchdowns and a field goal. Evansville had scored three touchdowns and a safety and led by eight points in the fourth quarter. Fate seemed an enemy that day, as Saint Joseph's failed on three excellent scoring opportunities. And even as the game ended, the Pumas were driving toward Evansville's goal line hoping for the points which would have given them a co-championship.

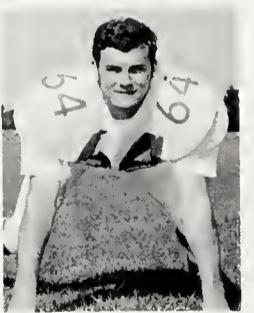

In the final game of the season, having already lost a possible bowl bid to Evansville, the Pumas wanted nothing more than to defeat Franklin which had been invited to the Mineral Water Bowl in Excelsior Springs, Mo. Franklin had the number one NAIA quarterback in the nation, but Saint Joseph's crushed the Grizzlies soundly, 22-0.

● Ruhe Signs with Indians: Baseball hitting star Dave Ruhe of the Pumas has signed a contract with the Cleveland Indians for a $15,000 bonus. Ruhe, now in his senior year at Saint Joseph's, hit .493 last year for the Pumas and was selected to the NCAA regional all-star team. The big first baseman will report to an Indian farm club after his graduation. He is from Ottawa, O.

● Puma Cubs Undefeated: The football picture at Saint Joseph's appears bright for the years ahead. Not only will many of this year's stars be back next year, but they will be augmented by members of this year's junior varsity team which completed a four-game schedule without a defeat. The Puma yearlings won over Valparaiso, Butler and the varsity team of the University of Chicago and tied wabash, 7-7.

● Another Coach of the Year: SJC's head football coach, Bill Jennings, has been selected ICC Coach of the Year by vote of the five league coaches. Jennings, now 16-20-0 after four seasons at SJC, led his club to a 7-2-0 mark in 1970, the winningest year at Collegeville since 1957. The Pumas finished second in the conference despite a pre-season poll which forecasted a cellar finish. Last spring, head basketball coach Jim Holstein was also selected ICC Coach of the Year.

● Wabash and Indiana Central to Join ICC: The Indiana Collegiate Conference will expand to a seven-team league with the additions of Wabash and Indiana Central to the conference. The two colleges were formally admitted to the ICC at a meeting of conference officials in November. But because of scheduling problems, it may be two years or more before both teams can compete for the ICC championship in football and basketball.

● Two Pumas Make MVP in ICC: Two members of Saint Joseph's 1970 football team have been named Most Valuable Players in the Indiana Collegiate Conference. Bill Pospisil, a junior from Manasquan, N.J., was the unanimous choice as the league's most valuable defensive back, and sophomore Doug Perkins, from Centerville, O., was the unanimous choice for most valuable defensive lineman. Besides Pospisil and Perkins, three other SJC players were selected to the all-conference first team: linebacker Dennis Strobel, a senior from Gloucester, N.J.; end Dave Marendt, a senior from Indianapolis; and center Bob Litzenberg, a senior from Marion, O.

"Little 500" To Motorize

Plans for the ninth annual "Little 500" race at Saint Joseph's reveal a radical departure from previous years. Chairman of the race, senior Dan Bryan of Chicago, has announced that this year's proposed race will replace the traditional man-powered cars with motorized go-karts and the course will be extended considerably.

The SJC "Little 500" was inaugurated in 1963 under the leadership of Mitch Kaminski '63, at that time vice-president of the Student Council. The race in subsequent years became one of the main social events each spring on campus, surrounded by a variety of related events, including time trials and a dance on the evening of the race.

In the past, each dorm entered a push-mobile in the race, and a team of runners and drivers would pilot the car around a quarter-mile track. The team to complete the most laps in the allotted time, usually three hours, won a $50 prize, a trophy and "Little 500" jackets for each member.

Bryan says in recent years the race has begun to lack interest and enthusiasm. To revive the enthusiasm, a committee of ten students drew up a new format for the race with the hope of involving alumni, parents and local residents as well as the students.

A detailed set of rules and specifications, based upon those of the International Kart Federation, has already been adopted by the committee. The race will be run on April 17 beginning at 12:30 and will last four hours, the car with the most laps being declared the winner. The winning team and sponsors will receive $500.

The event will also feature a grand marshall—a famous racing official—who will drive the official pace car, and a "Little 500" queen, selected from the SJC student body.

Each dorm will be provided with a motorized go-kart. Private entries are permitted, but they must be registered with the race officials before April 1 and conform with the specifications adopted by the committee. All cars must be driven by SJC students. Alumni wishing to sponsor a car or make a private entry should write Dan Bryan at the College (Box 111).

Cagers Stand 6-3; Await ICC Foes

With a record of six wins and three losses, Coach Jim Holstein's basketball Pumas await the conference opener at Valparaiso on January 6. Saint Joseph's, which last year won the NCAA Great Lakes Regional Championship for college division teams, has 15 games remaining on the schedule, including eight games with ICC foes.

The Pumas opened the season at home, losing to Steubenville of Ohio, 81-66. Two days later, Saint Joseph's bounced back to defeat Tri-State, 91-87, and then went on to win the next three games, defeating Anderson (69-65), West Liberty State (77-73) and Hope College (75-64). After a loss at Eastern Illinois (73-66) the Pumas returned home to defeat Michigan's Grand Valley State (102-72) and Western Illinois (80-73). In their last game before the Christmas break, playing at Northern Illinois, the Saints were out-scored, 100-75.

The remaining schedule will have the Pumas meeting some of their strongest competition in years. Besides the ICC games with Evansville, DePauw, Butler and Valparaiso, Saint Joseph's will also have to face Memphis State, Kent State, DePaul and Central Michigan.

Reporting on: new ideas for higher education ... a critical money shortage for colleges and universities

■ New Options: Those who study and plan for the future of higher education are giving serious thought these days to an array of ideas that could substantially change the role and structure of academic institutions. There's talk of reducing the time it takes to earn various degrees . . . cutting back on Ph.D. programs . . . creating new tests and services to give students more information about college and job opportunities . . . awarding degrees on the basis of what people know, rather than the courses they've taken . . . letting high school graduates feel free to postpone college entrance, with the understanding that they could enroll for at least two years whenever they wanted to.

■ Hitting Bottom? How serious is the "financial crisis" in higher education? "The Day of Judgment is upon us," says one college administrator. But colleges have long complained that they need more funds. Are things really that bad? The mounting evidence: Yes.

The crisis is "not just the familiar lament of fund-seeking presidents," warns Clark Kerr, chairman of the Carnegie Commission on Higher Education. "It is frighteningly real." A major study, supported by the commission and by the Ford Foundation, suggests that only about a third of all U.S. colleges and universities are not in financial trouble, and that the crisis affects all types of institutions. Most of them, the study concludes, face a loss of quality or a loss of services.

The situation is acute because several factors have come together at the same time. Inflation, soaring educational costs, declining stock prices, lagging federal aid, public hostility to increased state support—all have combined to put a tremendous drain on institutional budgets, especially those of private colleges. If the institutions are to survive, Mr. Kerr observes, their greatest need may be to restore public confidence.

■ Alumni Role: As colleges struggle with disruption—and the public's reaction to it—their alumni can help, said the President's Commission on Campus Unrest. In its main report, the panel had this advice for alumni:

—That they "refrain from hasty judgments on complex university problems and . . . avoid stereotyping entire groups because of the actions of a few of their members."

—That alumni not insist "that universities remain changeless, or be surprised if their institutions are not the same as they were when the alumni were students."

—That "disagreement with specific university policies or actions should not lead alumni to withdraw their general support from higher education."

A survey for the commission, incidentally, has shown a steady decline since 1967 in the use of off-campus police and the National Guard to control disorders. The most frequent responses to unrest in a recent four-month period were mediation and the use of student marshals.

■ Scholars Alarmed: A hundred scholars from nine nations, including the United States, have formed an International Committee on the University Emergency "to protect the rights of teachers and students to study together in peace and freedom." The committee says it is worried about "the growth of a politics of intimidation within universities, and the efforts, often clumsy, of people outside the academy to restore order." It plans to publish a newsletter on crises and to send groups to troubled campuses to urge firm stands against disruption.

■ In Brief: The federal government has been urged virtually to double its investment in medical and dental education within the year. We need more institutions to train health-care personnel, says the Carnegie Commission. It wants a 52-per-cent increase by 1978 in the annual number of medical-school entrants . . .

The opening fall enrollment in U.S. colleges and universities exceeded 8.55-million this year, reports the National Center for Educational Statistics after a preliminary survey . . .

An association of 274 state colleges and universities has, in effect, withdrawn its endorsement of a code of principals on academic freedom and tenure. In a revised statement, the group called for more stress on faculty responsibility and competence . . . Meanwhile, the American Association of University Professors has urged teachers to defend academic freedom against attacks from their own colleagues . . .

The dollar value of a college education has increased in the past decade, says the Census Bureau. Men 25 years of age and over can expect a lifetime income of nearly $580,000 if they've had at least four years of college. Ten years earlier the estimate was about $465,000. For high school graduates, the 1968 figure was $361,082.

Items of interest about Saint Joseph's College, the alumni, the faculty, and the students.

■ Alumnus Named Chairman of Trustees: G. Richard Schreiber '43 of Lake Bluff, Ill., has been elected chairman of the College's Board of Trustees to replace Arthur Hellyer who retired last summer. Schreiber, who holds his bachelor's degree from Saint Joseph's, is president of the National Automatic Merchandising Association in Chicago. Formerly he was vice-president and editorial director of Billboard Publications in New York.

■ Student Volunteers Win Service Award: The Indiana Department of Mental Health has presented its Distinguished Service Award for 1970 to ten SJC students in acknowledgement of volunteer work done during the 1969-70 school year. The students, all members of the psychology department, visited mental hospitals at nearby Logansport and Westville for weekly two-hour sessions, working with patients under the supervision of professional staff members. The students initiated a series of related volunteer activities, including Christmas parties at both hospitals where gifts, which had been donated by students and faculty at the SJC campus, were distributed to the patients. The students are again volunteering their help this year, and at the same time acquiring experience in their field of study.

■ Student, Prof and Alum Join trustees: A student, one faculty member and a young alumnus have been appointed to Saint Joseph's Board of Trustees, the chief policy-making body of the College. Joining the Board are Fred Giel, a junior from South Bend and president of the Student Association; Michael Davis, chairman of the SJC Geology Department and elected representative of the faculty; and Thomas DeMint '59, a vice-president at the Chicago office of J. Walter Thompson Advertising, Inc. DeMint's appointment is permanent, while Davis and Giel will serve on the Board by virtue of their elected positions.

■ Accounting Alumni Donate $1150: SJC alumni employed by the accounting firm of Arthur Andersen & Co. have donated $1150 to the College's Rensselaer Campus and another $660 to the Calumet Campus. The alumni with Arthur Andersen, who annually conduct an inter-office campaign for the benefit of Saint Joseph's, had their personal donations matched by their firm. Arthur Andersen & Co. is one of some 460 firms which match the donations of their employees to colleges. There are 40 SJC alumni with Arthur Andersen, including nine from the Calumet Campus.

by Robert Lofft '66

Those alumni who were close to Fr. Hiller remember most of all the understanding and sympathy which he had for his students, especially those in academic trouble or having personal problems. If you were in one of his courses, he always called you by your last name whenever and wherever he'd see you—and somehow he made even the most Irish of names sound pure German. We are saddened by his death, but a man like him must have claimed a great reward in eternity.

George Roche, father of alumnus Dave Roche '65, writes a sports column for the Sunday Visitor in northwest Indiana. Last summer he predicted an undefeated season for the football Pumas, much to the amusement of his readers and fellow writers. But then the season began, and George evidently had known something the others didn't. The Pumas missed that undefeated season by a total of eight points and finished with an astonishing 7-2 record. George was wrong, but still more accurate than anyone else, and we wonder where he got his information.

The SJC GLEE CLUB performed a benefit concert last month for two former students who have incurred heavy medical expenses. Kathy Elpers, who was about to begin her second year at Saint Joseph's, was severely injured in an accident last August near her home in Haubstadt, Ind. And Tom Potraza '68, married and the father of a little girl, has been undergoing treatment since December of 1969 for spinal paralysis in the upper half of his body. Both Kathy and Tom were active in the SJC music department. Alumni wishing to contribute to their fund may mail donations to Dr. John Egan in care of the College.

There were times when every SJC student could count on an unscheduled vacation due to a plumbing failure (artificially induced or not). No more. The College has put into operation a water filtration plant designed to substantially reduce water hardness and remove corrosive elements through filtration. Resident Engineer Tom Moore states that the soft water is more suitable for maximum boiler operation and easier on the pipes. It's something of a paradox that Tom is still a popular man with the students.

The Pumas lost the ICC football championship to Evansville in the last conference game of the season in a close and, for SJC, a frustrating game. Despite the loss to Evansville, Coach Bill Jennings was voted ICC Coach of the Year. Jennings says he has offered to trade the Coach of the Year Award to Evansville's Coach Jim Byers for the ICC championship.

Gary Smith, the young and energetic band director at Saint Joseph's, has started a beginners' band at the College. If you have any old musical instruments not being used and would like to help the band, please write Gary in care of the College.

College President Fr. Charles Banet reports that last year's disturbances on America's campuses, contrary to expectations, have not adversely affected private support of higher education. In calling on businessmen on behalf of the Associated Colleges of Indiana, of which SJC is a member, Father says he has found them to be sympathetic toward the problems which the colleges and universities are experiencing. Many alumni must hold similar views as donations are coming in at a record rate this year. Our thanks to all of you.
